

AT&T: Keep America Working!

U.S. Unemployment Climbs to 10%

Recession Worsens

More Layoffs Announced

Plenty of companies are in trouble these days. AT&T isn't one of them.

AT&T's 2008 profit was $12.9 billion. CEO Randall Stephenson is paid $45,000 a day. He and other top executives also enjoy lavish perks, like personal use of AT&T's 15 corporate jets.

Meanwhile, more than 22,000 AT&T jobs are done by contractors outside the U.S. in countries that have one thing in common: far lower wages and benefits.

There is nothing our economy needs more right now than good jobs. Healthy companies like AT&T can help lead our communities and the country to better times by maintaining good jobs in our communities and bringing work back from overseas.

AT&T Has Sent More than 22,000 Jobs Outside the U.S.

Philippines	16,000 jobs
India	4,700 jobs
Argentina	1,000 jobs
Mexico	400 jobs
Costa Rica	300 jobs

AT&T jobs are also outsourced to Belarus, Uzbekistan, and Singapore.

AT&T, the largest U.S. telecom company, has always been a leader. Today, AT&T should also be a leader in our nation's economic recovery.
